Racine, Wis., May 3.—Another bad automobile accident occurred here at one o'clock this afternoon on upper Washington avenue, in which three persons were injured.

Paul Poulsen, aged 50, had a rib broken and sustained internal injuries and is not expected to live. He was taken to a hospital where he was operated upon. J. C. Paul had his right ankle broken and was slightly injured. Gus Reebor was badly shaken up and bruised.

The accident was caused by a testing car of the Mitchell-Lewis Motor crashing into the rear of a platform wagon owned by Wm. Paul & Son.

The testing car was in charge of C. Brewer who was running the car along the avenue with four or five other men and failed to see the wagon.

An inquest was held this morning in the case of Harry Thompson who was run over and killed by a car which Mayor Horlick was driving. The jury brought in a verdict saying the accident was unavoidable and exonerated Mayor Horlick from all blame.

[EXCERPT TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 3.—Prevalence of the fasting fad, involving attempts to exist on one meal a day, has been discovered among the coeds of the University of Wisconsin and as a result faculty women in charge of the girls' welfare have been quietly investigating. The discovery was brought on when Lillian Peterson of Mount Horeb, a senior, was ordered to take to her bed for a week by Dr. Evans, the university physician. Abbie Peterson had been trying to get along on one meal a day for several weeks, foot, flesh, and friends finally notified Dr. Evans. With the members of his party he was entertained at luncheon at the home of Lucia Wilson.

finance committee the following bills were ordered paid: $181.05 to the First National bank of this city, active sign of the People's Construction company of Davenport, Iowa, in full for work on the main outlet sewer; $180.55 from the fire and water fund to E. W. Fisher for eight tons and and Neel in payment for sewer work done in sewerage districts No. 16 and 17.

Improvements.

Various improvements, including street improvements and the laying of crosswalks were also authorized.
Among them were the improvement of Rue street, between Jackson and Academy streets and Mineral Point avenue, between Madison and Champlain street, with cement gutters and curbs; and the laying of standard crosswalks across S. High street, on the south side of Holmes street, on the west side of South Franklin street, Cherry street on the south side of School street, and across Pleasant street at Academy street.
The city engineer was also ordered to prepare plans for a sanitary sewer on Clarence street, between Milwaukee avenue and Court street, the said sewer to take the place of the sanitary sewer heretofore ordered on Clark field avenue.

Sidewalks Ordered.

In furtherance of the plan to improve the city's walks, the street commissioner was directed to order standard sidewalks laid in front of the following property: On the west side of Hickory street, in front of lots 10, 11, 12 and 13, block 4, Plyboy and Shaw's second addition; in front of lot

Hickey's addition.

Other Business.

Upon motion of Ald. Brown the city clerk was directed to advertise to firms for cement contractors to build sidewalks for the city during the season of 1910.

Without making any motion or effort to force action at the present time, Ald. Evans called the attention of the members of the council to forceful language to the deplorable condition of the dwelling house owned by the city at the corner of Jackson and Bluff streets. He stated that while the city was drawing seven dollars a month rent from the place, in reality it was worth about seven cents, that it was a disgrace to the city and should be repaired before it sank into the ground where it really belonged.

ALDRICH SURRENDERS FIGHT ON RATE BILL

Abandons Two Sections of Administration Measure After Conference With Associates.

Washington, May 3.—At a conference last night of Senate "organizations" leaders the elimination of sections 7 and 12 of the railroad bill was ordered. This was done, however, only after Senator Aldrich had talked over the telephone with President Taft in Pittsburg. Section 7, as the "Insurgents" contend, practically repeals the Sherman anti-trust law so far as it relates to railroads and section 12 provides the way whereby the railroads can enter into mergers.
Both these propositions have been bitterly contested by the "Insurgents" and Democrats.

It is freely admitted on all sides that the developments end all prospects of the passage of any kind of a railroad bill at this session.

At the close of the conference it was apparent that the revolt of the Senate "Insurgents" had been virtually successful, and that the sections of the bill relative to traffic agreements and mergers, which Senator Cummings and other insurgents have been fighting to amend, will be abandoned.

Practically nothing distinctive of the original bill will remain, save the sections providing for the creation of a court of commerce. Even that has a perfunctory time in the house, and no body is prepared to guarantee that it will be enacted.

In fact, the differences between the Senate and house are so great that in view of the radical action decided upon by Senate leaders, it would surprise nobody if the entire bill should fail in conference.

EXPERT WITNESSES AID IN HYDE'S DEFENSE

Motion Is Made to Exclude Mention of All Poisons—May Help Accused.

Kansas City, Mo., May 3.—Two expert witnesses were put on the stand in the Swope poisoning case. Dr. Ludwig Heiktoen of Chicago was grilled by Frank P. Walsh, who read from the expert's own books to discredit his testimony.

"This was the hardest examination
I have ever had," said Dr. Heiktoen. "I think that the state would have been better off had they taken me off the stand."

"You are the best witness so far,"

said Mr. Walsh of Hyde's counsel.

Dr. Walter S. Haines' own tests failed to show a trace of stricholine in the case of Margaret Swope or Charles Swope. He could not find cyanide, but found marked evidences of stricholine in Colonel Thomas H.
Swope's body. In the capsules he found cyanide.

Following the reading of a transcript of the testimony given by Doctors Heiktoen and Haines, Judge Lab-shave will rule today on a motion made by Mr. Walsh to exclude from the record all mention of cyanide of potassium and stricholine in the case of the death of Margaret Swope and mention of stricholine which alone was found in only a trace. In the effects of Miss Margaret Swope after a second analysis.

The order, if it is made, will strike from the record all of the testimony that the state has introduced tending to show that Dr. Hyde poisoned these persons and such testimony will be ordered stricken from the mind of the jury as well as excluded from the record. It will mean in reality that Dr. Hyde has been acquitted of the charges of poisoning those persons and the evidence will be narrowed down to only that which affects the case against him, in which he is in-charged of having poisoned Colonel

Swope.

WHITE IS FIRST WITNESS

Accuser Carries Into Jury Room Packet of Letters Believed to Have Passed Between Those Who He Accuses and Himself.

Chicago, May 3.—Charles A. White, state representative, who charged that he was bribed with $1,000 to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator, went before the special grand jury and told his story. He carried a packet that was believed to contain letters and telegrams that passed between him and Senator Lorimer, Lee O'Neill Browne and Representative Robert E. Wilson.

The Tribune, which first published Representative White's story that he had been paid for voting for Lorimer, prints a statement by State Senator Albert Isley of Newark, in which he declares that one member of the legislature told him he had been offered $1,000 to vote for Lorimer for senator, but had refused. Isley declined, however, to name his informant.

The Tribune also publishes a number of letters alleged to have been addressed to White by Lee O'Neill Browne, the Democratic leader in the legislature, and Robert E. Wilson, Democratic representative from Chicago, who was manager of the alleged political "jackpot."

Call White, "Old-Pal."

In branding White's charges as false, both Browne and Wilson declared their acquaintance with White was only "casual." The letters alleged to have been written by Browne call White "Fyland Charley," "Fyland White," "Old Man" and "Old Pal." The Tribune also says that White has in his possession a letter offering him a block of stock in Senator Lorimer's new bank and stating that a block of stock had been held out for the senator's friends. A letter alleged to have been written by Browne on June 1, 1908, tells White how to get railroad transportation from the Atchison, Illinois Central and Wabash railroad companies and the Pullman company.

Took Lake-Trip Together.

A further statement by White regarding his alleged relations with Browne is also published in the Tribune. It tells of several lake trips taken by himself and Browne, in which the latter spent money lavishly. According to the statement, White asked Browne to get him a job and Browne got him one in the city hall through Senator Lorimer, which White refused to accept.

The narrative also contains this statement: "I could not say how much money was paid into the 'jackpot' but was told by one of the old members that it was upward of $300,000, outside of the senatorial deal."

A special session of the legislature will not be called to investigate the White charges. Governor Denney and Attorney General Staudt have conferred and agreed that such a session is not necessary. The governor believed the matter should be probed through the grand jury at Chicago and Springfield.

The Court's Instructions.

In the course of special instructions to the grand jury, Judge Kersten had this to say concerning the Lorimer case: "The nature of the matter you are called to investigate is so grave in character that the court does not feel it necessary to impress on you the great obligation with which you are charged. No more hideous crime, no more dangerous crime than the corruption of public officials can be imagined; and no crime can be more deliberately aimed at the very foundation of the government than that with the investigation of which you are now charged by the court." Judge Kersten brought his instructions to a close with the usual warnings as to secrecy, etc.

"So far as the textile industries are concerned, there is nothing essentially different in the situation. For the moral and ultimate financial welfare of all of us, it is satisfactory to say that people are learning to wear their clothes longer. This, however, is not encouraging to patriotic woolen manufacturers who have devoted time and money to securing an ideal tariff schedule—ideal, that is to say, from their point of view. The vitality of the tariff issue is shown in the woolen and cotton goods trades, and there is throughout the country an abiding resentment both at the advances in prices of those commodities and the shocking deterioration in quality.

"Thanks to a period of high tariff which was not even the protection of infant industries, it pretended to be, we have established an international reputation for the manufacture of rubber. Rubber was not considered a very practical commodity, but it was evidently right when he said that no workmen could produce poor work, or take any part in its production, without moral deterioration."

"The high prices for cotton and wool, which have prevailed for the past two years has resulted in reducing the quality, in many lines of goods, and the consumer is getting less for his money than ever before. It is no longer necessary to go abroad for 'sophisticated' for plenty of it is supplied at home. The only source of satisfaction is found in the fact that American labor is well paid for its work, as the tariff bars foreign competition.

"Senator Hale recently wrote a letter to the Governor of Maine, announcing his retirement from public life, and urging the necessity for the state to maintain a solid front in Congress, on account of the importance of its manufacturing industries. He suggested that a Democratic congress meant free trade, and that this would be ruinous to the state of Maine, which is doubtless true. It does not occur to Senator Hale and his colleagues in the east that over-protection is the cause of the unrest now existing.

"FISH OR CUT BAIT.
The insurgents in the senate have at last discovered that there is a limit to the amount of horse play which their democratic allies will tolerate. At odds with their republican colleagues they are now given to understand that the democratic party has no use for them unless they are ready to join forces and swear allegiance to democracy.

"Senator Bailey of Texas said to them plainly, the other day: 'No man can claim the protection of a flag and at the same time fire upon it.' Senator Dooliver of Iowa, in attempting a defense, said:

"I propose to fight, not against the republican party, but for it, to fight within its ranks, not in order to cripple or injure or to distract its useful, now, but to make it the obedient servant, no longer of a few men or a few overgrown financial interests, but of the scattered millions who make up its membership and who have a right to be consulted in its management and control."

"This told the senator open to a sharp cut from Mr. Bailey. In the report that he was chairman of the democratic congressional campaign committee he would circulate that explanation all over the United States as a campaign document against the republican party. He claimed that it was an admission that the republican party is controlled and dominated by the special interests."

"Senator Bayner of Maryland along with Senator Bailey served notice on the insurgents that he was tired of the situations the radicals have been carrying on with the democracy and asked them to declare their intentions. Both invited them to come over and join the democrats. In conclusion, Senator Bailey tendered the insurgents a plen of valuable advice when he said: 'You may win defending what the republican party has done. You cannot win as republicans denouncing its legislation and its leaders.'

"The democratic leaders are to be congratulated on the stand they have taken with these would-be statesmen of the Cherokee strip. Some of these men have been living on the democratic border so long that the democratic camp appeals to them."

"Fair minded democrats" have helped to place some of them in office, and there is no reason why they should not be reelected by joining the forces."

THE MEAT BOYCOTT.

The boycott on beef, which swept over the country like an epidemic last winter, subsided so quietly that it was soon lost to sight, but the aftermath comes and the whole of the Lorimer investigation may fall to the ground from its own weight.

"Fifteen railroads have increased their payrolls to the extent of $45,000,000 and many other lines are in process of adjustment. It is safe to say that at least $100,000,000 more will be distributed for labor by the railroads this year than during 1909. An advance in freight rates is bound to follow, and should be met without complaint.

"The interest in Halley's comet has not diminished, only some people object to getting up so early to see it or staying up so late for the same purpose. They would much rather prefer having the comet arrange its hours of appearance to suit their convenience.

INFERIOR GOODS.

"A financial journal, in reviewing conditions, has this to say concerning the inferior quality of goods now being turned out by American manufacturers in New England.

"So far as the textile industries are concerned, there is nothing essentially different in the situation. For the moral and ultimate financial welfare of all of us, it is satisfactory to say that people are learning to wear their clothes longer. This, however, is not encouraging to patriotic woolen manufacturers who have devoted time and money to securing an ideal tariff schedule—ideal, that is to say, from their point of view. "I propose to fight, not against the republican party, but for it, to fight within its ranks, not in order to cripple or injure or to distract its useful, now, but to make it the obedient servant, no longer of a few men or a few overgrown financial interests, but of the scattered millions who make up its membership and who have a right to be consulted in its management and control."

"This told the senator open to a sharp cut from Mr. Bailey. In the report that he was chairman of the democratic congressional campaign committee he would circulate that explanation all over the United States as a campaign document against the republican party. He claimed that it was an admission that the republican party is controlled and dominated by the special interests."

"The democratic leaders are to be congratulated on the stand they have taken with these would-be statesmen of the Cherokee strip. Some of these men have been living on the democratic border so long that the democratic camp appeals to them."

"Fair minded democrats" have helped to place some of them in office, and there is no reason why they should not be reelected by joining the forces."

"FISH OR CUT BAIT.
The insurgents in the senate have at last discovered that there is a limit to the amount of horse play which their democratic allies will tolerate. At odds with their republican colleagues they are now given to understand that the democratic party has no use for them unless they are ready to join forces and swear allegiance to democracy.

"Senator Bailey of Texas said to them plainly, the other day: 'No man can claim the protection of a flag and at the same time fire upon it.' Senator Dooliver of Iowa, in attempting a defense, said:

"I propose to fight, not against the republican party, but for it, to fight within its ranks, not in order to cripple or injure or to distract its useful, now, but to make it the obedient servant, no longer of a few men or a few overgrown financial interests, but of the scattered millions who make up its membership and who have a right to be consulted in its management and control."

"This told the senator open to a sharp cut from Mr. Bailey. In the report that he was chairman of the democratic congressional campaign

Not High Prices

I believe in live and let live in dental prices.

Lots of work comes to me from surrounding towns because prices are too high at home.

People can pay their railroad fare to Janesville many times over, if they let me to do their dentistry, and still be money ahead after the job is done.

This is no folly. It is repeated to me almost daily by wide awake people who look around before selecting their dentist.

This county is full of my work doing good service every day.

It's durable—it's right in every way.

First Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds

The Hansen Furniture Company of Janesville are about to build another factory to take care of their business. Their present plant has been upgraded at over $80,000 and with the new building will make a total security of over $100,000.

To pay for this addition the company has executed a first mortgage on its plant to the president and cashier of the Rock County National Bank, as Trustee, to secure not to exceed $30,000 of bonds, in which the company agrees to carry at least $80,000 insurance payable to the trustees. These bonds are for $100, $200 and $500, pay 6% interest, payable semi-annually in April and October, and run from 3 to 8 years.

We examined the title to the property and had charge of the drawing and execution of the mortgage and bonds. A number of these bonds have been sold to employees of the company and others in this city. The un-sold portion can be obtained at our office and we recommend them as a safe 6% investment.

TAFT PRAISES KNOX
IN VIGOROUS TALK

STANDS BY SECRETARY'S NICARAGUAN POLICY AT GRANT DAY DINNER.

PROUD OF PREMIER'S WORK

President Spends Busy Day—Makes Three Addresses—Attends Baseball Game—Hundreds of Police Guard Him During Stay at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3.—In a speech which dealt almost wholly with the foreign affairs of the country, President Taft concluded his two days' visit in Pittsburgh at the Grant day dinner of the American club.

The president paid a striking tribute to the secretary of state, Mr. Knox, who was present. He vigorously defended and justified the secretary's Nicaraguan policy, flayed those who invented the phrase "dollar diplomacy" with the idea of bringing contempt to a policy in which he said the nation is vitally interested and concluded with the declaration that the record of the state department during the first year of the present administration was one to which he pointed with the greatest pride.

Arouses Much Enthusiasm.

The president's praise of Secretary Knox and his vigorous language in dealing with the critics of the state department aroused the American club diners to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Mr. Taft had an exceedingly busy day and was pretty thoroughly tired out when he retired on board his private car preparatory to leaving at 3:30 p.m. for Cincinnati.

Tells Girls of Future.

The president's day began with a brief address to the students at the Pennsylvania state college for women, where he told the students that he was sure they were preparing themselves to take an important part in the life of the nation, whether they were allowed to vote or not.

Mr. Taft next made an address at the Founders' day exercises at Carnegie Institute, where he declared that in the development of the esthetic this nation has much to learn from the older countries of Europe.

After luncheon at the University club came the ball game between the Pittsburgh and Chicago teams of the National league. The fact that the president was to attend had been heralded abroad for months, and the result was a crowd which tested the capacity of the tremendous new plant. Mr. Taft had expressed a desire to "sit among the fans," but the local committee took him to a box on the second tier of the big steel grandstand, where comparatively few of the spectators could see. The fact that the president had arrived, however, soon spread through the throng and there was a cheer.

Police Surround President.

Before the game began the president wrote his "best wishes" on two baseballs, signed the spheres and sent them to "Hans" Wagner and Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgh team.

During his entire stay in Pittsburgh President Taft was surrounded by hundreds of policemen and "plain clothes" men. At the baseball game it seemed as if half the spectators were wearing blue coats and berets.

BASEBALL AUTO RACERS HURT.

Five Friends of Honus Wagner Hurled Over Embankment Near Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 3.—Speeding along the Noblestown pike at 40 miles an hour, an automobile owned by Dr. E. G. Mustier, former burgess of Carnegie, containing five passengers, while racing Honus Wagner's car, jumped over a 60-foot embankment, plunged to the bottom and turned turtle, pinioning the occupants under the wrecked car. All the occupants were seriously injured.

The wrecked car was racing "Honus" Wagner's machine as the diamond hero returned from the game. The injured were taken to Carnegie in automobiles. While running through Rock, Wagner's car ran down and seriously injured the ten-year-old daughter of John Hartnett.

Comptroller Says City Has Lost Thousands of Dollars.

Springfield, Ill., May 3.—The lid was blown off the munificent scandal when City Comptroller Frank Simmons reported to the city council that he had found a wide discrepancy between the general books and the expenditure books in his office, and asked that action be taken to ascertain the facts in the case.

Comptroller Simmons already had laid the matter before State's Attorney Burke and that official is preparing to make inquiry into the situation before the present grand jury is adjourned.

Duplication of warrants and duplicate payments of bills against the city are reported to have been unearthed by Comptroller Simmons in sums running into thousands of dollars.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

WOMEN shouldn't have the suffrage because they age so much more rapidly than men that at forty-five they are too decrepit mentally to be capable of voting, is the latest anti-suffrage argument.

As an anti-suffrage argument, I don't think it's worth trying to disprove.

As a reminder that one class of women at forty-five are older than men of the same age, and much older than they need to be, it is an all too true statement.

And if you want to know what class I mean, just look around among the women you know and tell me if the business and professional women of your acquaintance—the nurse, the stenographer, the schoolmarm, the music teacher, the bookkeeper—no matter how hard they may have to work, aren't younger at forty-five and fifty and fifty-five than the women who have been twenty or thirty years married.

Now, I am not going to ask you to draw the conclusion that it would be better for women to remain in the industrial world after marriage. I think that is a very many-sided question, and one upon which the world conditions of the future will have a big bearing.

I am not one of those radicals who say: "Every woman should have a vocation."

But I do think every woman should have an avocation—an absorbing interest outside her home.

A great specialist said recently that a majority of the cases of nervous prostration and insanity among women are due simply and solely to the deadly monotony of household routine.

It is not that the woman has worked too hard, he says, half so much as that their work has been too monotonous.

No woman ought to allow herself to be without some very definite interest outside her home—music, writing, some line of study, some branch of active work, some definite and absorbing responsibility of church work, or work in some big cause.

It does not matter so much what the interest is, so that it be something sufficiently absorbing to keep her mind thoroughly occupied while she is doing the dishes and beds and the dusting, and the million and one little routine things that do not need her entire attention.

It seems to me that it is an active mind more than anything else that keeps people young.

A man is as old as he feels and a woman as old as she looks, they say, but it seems to me that they are both as young as they think.

And the women who are too closely shut up in the routine of a home get old so much more rapidly than their sisters in the world outside because they don't have enough to think about and their minds get sluggish.

Of course, a woman's duty to her home is first, but I think she will not quit herself of that duty better if she also performs some duty to her individual self and to the world outside.

VICE OF SELF-CONCEIT.

By MARY HUSSICK.

One of the most difficult of all the vices to handle is the vice of self-conceit. An honest and grasping desire for power which is not self-deceived is not half as great a problem.

The man who knows he is wrong, but who intends to accomplish a certain purpose right or wrong is not half so daring as the man who believes he is right, but who is filled with vanity of his own prowess.

It is a pitiful thing to hear a man or woman who has really accomplished some great purpose boast in broad and unattractive terms of "my" deeds.

"Good wine needs no bush," Shakespeare knew the heart of men as did no other of his time. He did not know women of today, but he knew the women of his time, and he knew that there was no more swift road to self-destruction than the boasting conceit of performance.

If you have done a kind thing it loses flavor when you tell of it. Let the person who was the recipient do the boasting and do your best to forget it.

If you have done a big thing in church, or town, or club, or in any of the fields open to you be sure that your deed has been seen of men and that if it is not big enough to stand alone it was not as large as you thought it and therefore less worthy of speech.

In a community, or church, or club—if you are a woman—the ones who use "I" seldom are the greatest power for good.

If a man is honest with himself he will be sparing of self-praise. He will be wary of overestimating the little deeds he may do.

The woman who earns a living for a brood of children over the wash-tub is a greater heroine than the gifted woman with sufficient brains to sit in a sheltered home and spin the stories out of her brain that provides that shelter.

The deeds of the one are heralded abroad, but every town has its heroine of the wash-tub—and the pity of it is that we treat her with a silent contempt that she has not been able to rise above her lowly employment.

Look yourself in the face—yourself, not the smiling face you see in the mirror, and see if you are honest, to the uttermost fibre or do you pose before your own judgment?

AFTERNOON HAT FOR QUITE A YOUNG GIRL.

One of the odd methods of treating a hat is seen in this one of natural-colored leghorn, which has an extravagantly wide brim faced with black velvet and be sharply upturned at the left side and back against a high crown entirely concealed by masses of white roses and foliage. The lingerie frock of white batiste and point de Venise lace, has a V-shaped neck, rounded by means of the low-cut lace yoke which elongates into bands crossing the shoulders and extending the entire length of the dress.

Honored artist is honored artist is the Marquise de Wentworth. She has just been made a member of the Jury of French Women Painters and Sculptors. While this is the highest honor ever conferred on an American artist, it is only one of many received by the marquise. Her work is no remarkable that she has been called upon to paint notables of every land, including popes, kings, queens, presidents and millionaires.

Conscience.

It is not history which teaches conscience to be honest; it is the conscience which educates history. Fact is corrupting; it is we who corrupt it by the persistence of our ideals. The soul moralizes the past in order not to be demoralized by it. Like the alchemists of the middle ages, she finds in the crucible of experience only the gold that she herself has poured into it.—Adel's Journal.

Habit of Loon.

As a diver the loon excels and naturally, for it has the sole means of livelihood. Not only is he marvelously quick, but he can remain under water for a seemingly endless time. In swimming under water he uses both wings and feet and can go for several hundred yards in the fashion. The loon, like many other water fowl, sleeps on the water with his head tucked under his wing.—St. Nicholas.

Uncomplimentary.

It was three o'clock in the morning as Mr. Youngusband crept softly up the stairs. Opening the door to his room noiselessly, he stepped upon the tail of the family cat. Naturally a penetrating yowl resounded through the night. "John," said his wife, awakening, "don't you think it's rather late to be singing; the neighbors might complain."

Especially in the Subway.

"There ain't but one trouble with this here city air," said Uncle Rufe, sniffing the atmosphere speculatively; "it do need ventilation!"—Holland's Magazine.

SWEEEPING AND CLEANING IS EASY WHEN YOU USE

DIAMOND FLOOR SWEEPING COMPOUND

It is a sanitary and dust absorbing preparation to use in sweeping wooden floors, linoleums and carpets.

It prevents the dust from rising and filling the air with germs and making it unhealthy. This is why it is sanitary.

In preventing the dust from rising and covering the furniture, woodwork etc., the Diamond Floor Sweeping compound reduces your time and work formerly taken in dusting to a minimum. This is why your cleaning will be easier, besides you save lots of time, which you can use to good advantage some other way.

A trial will more than convince you that it is just what we claim it to be. We can supply you with any quantity. Get some today and use it. Sold by grocers here in town.

The Harris Chemical Co.

222 W. Milwaukee St. New Phone 309.

Why Do You Use a Broom?

Sweeping only wears out your strength—your rugs—and the brooms. You simply can't sweep clean with brooms. If you could there would be no "Housecleaning" seasons. True, you gather up the surface dirt. But the germ-laden dust—the really dangerous dirt—is simply rubbed into rugs or scattered into the air of the room, and so—

Sweeping Defeats Its Very Purposes

The Ideal Vacuum Cleaner sucks up every particle of dirt, from deep within the very warp and thread of rugs, carpets and hangings; from deep within the padding of upholstery, mattresses and pillows, dust and dirt are sucked into the nozzle—through the length of the hose—into the dust-tight chamber. Thence you lift it out and burn it or dispose of it out-of-doors.

The Ideal Vacuum Cleaner is the best, simplest and most complete of all cleaners. Costs less than 2c an hour to operate. Complete equipment for the work you will require. For sale and for rent. You can clean your entire house in one day and be under no obligation. Rental $1.50 per day. We deliver and call for same free of charge. If you wish to rent a machine, order early. Free demonstration in your home.

PRICES $25.00 TO $65.00.

Heart to Heart Talks.

THE GOLDEN AGE.

Do you doubt sometimes whether the world is really growing better?

Well, one of the ways by which we may find out how far we have gone is to look backward.

Dr. Browne of Boston university says, "Union college of New York was founded by means of a lottery, and many other institutions—even churches—used similar methods of raising money."

And perhaps you know old men—I do—who can remember that it was thought to be impossible to harvest the grain without plenty of liquors, and when the minister called to dine the first profiter of hospitality was whisky from a decanter which permanently adorned the sideboard.

Looking backward fifty, a hundred years, we note a tremendous advance. Looking further backward, we see a very slow change to barbarism and then to civilization and finally to humanism.

"Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay."

But better one decade of America than a hundred years of Europe.

Why, think of it! Here is the richest American dedicating the bulk of his immense fortune "to promote the well being and advance the civilization of the people of the United States."

I care not what you think of the man's past or his manner of getting the money. If he has taken more than his share of the national wealth he is setting an example before the world in returning it to the people.

Again does America lead the world! Oh, yes; I know the spotlights of the press throw upon public and private life reveal some unpleasant things, but those in the limelight are only an infinitesimal fraction of the people.

We are making progress. The time and space would fail me to speak of the hospitals and the homes for the aged and friendless and orphans and the countless humane institutions of this age.

Despite graft and greed, American life is sound at the core. The mass of manhood and womanhood is pure. The ideals of the republic are high.

"Great Caesar!" exclaimed the man who had just hoisted him. "I did the 'stun' thing once and they sent

BORRY, BUT BEARING UP WELL.

"I'm truly sorry, ma'am," said Old Stumps to the widow, "to see you in such hard luck. You mustn't let it discourage you, though. It may be all for the best."

Then he went and foreclosed the mortgage.

At these words I saw my lady's eyes flicker. "It is fate, señor," said she, again casting down her eyes, and spreading out her hands as in resignation, "fate which left Texas and Mexico not always one."

"That may be," said Mr. Calhoun, "Perhaps fate, also, that those of kin should cling together."

"How can a mere woman know?" My lady shrugged her very graceful and beautiful shoulders—somewhat immature shoulders now, but still beautiful.

"Dear señor," said Mr. Calhoun, "there are so many things a woman may not know. For instance, how could she know if her husband should perchance leave the legation to which he was attached and pay a visit to another nation?"

Again the slight flickering of her eyes, but again her hands were outspread in protest.

"How indeed, señor?"

"What if my young adobe here, Mr. Trist, should tell you that he has seen your husband some hundreds of miles away and in conference with a lady supposed to be somewhat friendly toward—"

"Ah, you mean that baroness—!"

So soon had the shaft gone home! Her woman's jealousy had offered a point unexpectedly weak. Calhoun bowed, without a smile upon his face.

"Mr. Pakenham, the British minister, is disposed to be friendly to this same lady. Your husband and a certain officer of the British navy called upon this same lady last week in Montreal—informally. It is sometimes unfortunate that plans are divulged. To me it seemed only wise and fit that you should not let any of these little personal matters make for us greater complications in these perilous times. I think you understand me, perhaps, Señora Yturrio?"

She gurgled low in her throat at this, any sort of sound, meaning to remain ambiguous. But Calhoun was merciless.

"It is not within dignity, señora, for me to make trouble between a lady and her husband. But we must have friends with us under our flag, or know that they are, not our friends. You are welcome in my house. Your husband is welcome in the house of our republic. There are certain duties, even thus."

Only now and again she turned upon him the light of her splendid eyes, searching him.

"If I should recall again, gently, my dear señora, the fact that your husband was with that particular woman—if I should say that Mexico has been found under the dog of England, while supposed to be under our flag—if I should add that one of the representatives of the Mexican legation had been discovered in handling over to England certain secrets of this country and of the Republic of Texas—why, then, what answer, think you, señora, Mexico, would make to me?"

"But Señor Calhoun does not mean—does not dare to say—"

"I do dare it; I do mean it! I can tell you that Mexico plans, and all that Texas plans. All the secrets are out; and where we know them, we propose immediate annexation of the Republic of Texas! Though it means war, Texas shall be ours! This has been forced upon us by the perfidy of other nations."

"You seek war, Señor Secretary! My people say that your armies are in Texas now, or will be."

"They are but very slightly in advance of the truth, señora," said Calhoun grimly. "For me, I do not believe in war when war can be averted. But suppose it could be averted? Suppose the Señora Yturrio herself could—"

"I can not—it is impossible!" she exclaimed, as she glanced at the paper. "It is our ruin!"

"No, señora," said Calhoun sternly;

"It means annexation of Texas to the United States. But that is not your ruin. It is your salvation. Your country, well may doubt England, even England bearing gifts!"

"I have no control over Señor Van Zandt—he is the enemy of my country!" she began.

Calhoun now fixed upon her the full cold blue blaze of his singularly penetrating eyes. "No, señora," he said sternly: "but you have access to my friend Mr. Polk, and Mr. Polk is the friend of Mr. Jackson, and they two are friends of Mr. Van Zandt; and Texas supposes that these two, although they do not represent precisely my own beliefs in politics, are for the annexation of Texas, not to England, but to America. There is good chance Mr. Polk may be president. If you do not use your personal influence with him, he may consult politics and not you, and so declare war against Mexico. That war would cost you Texas, and much more as well. Now, to avert that war, do you not think that perhaps you can ask Mr. Polk to say to Mr. Van Zandt that his signature on this little treaty would end all such questions simply, immediately, and to the best benefit of Mexico, Texas and the United States? Treason? Why, señora, that would be preventing treason!"

Her face was half blidened by her fan, and her eyes, covered by their deep lids, gave no sign of her thoughts. The same cold voice went on:

"You might, for instance, tell Mr. Polk, which is to say Mr. Van Zandt, that if his name goes on this little treaty for Texas to nothing will be sold to Texas regarding his proposal to give Texas over to England. It might not be safe for that little fact generally to be known in Texas as it is known to me. We will keep it secret. You might ask Mr. Van Zandt if he would name a seat in the senate of these United States, rather than a lynching rope! So much do I value your honorable acquaintance with Mr. Polk and Mr. Van Zandt, my dear lady, that I—" avert it? Suppose the señora could remain here still, in this city which she so much admires? A lady of so distinguished beauty and charm is valuable in our society here."

He bowed to her with steady grace. If there was mockery in his tone, she could not catch it; nor all her searching eyes read his meaning.

"See," he resumed, "alone, I am helpless in this situation. If my government is offended, I cannot stop the course of events. I am not the senator; I am simply an officer in our administration—a very humble officer of his excellency our president, Mr. Tyler."

My lady broke out in a peal of low rippling laughter, her white teeth gleaming. It was, after all, somewhat difficult to trifle with one who had been trained in intrigue all her life.

Calhoun laughed now in his own quiet way. "We shall do better if we act entirely frankly, señora," said he. "Let us then waste no time. Frankly, then, it would seem that, now the Baroness von Ritz is off the scene, the Señora Yturrio would have all the better title and opportunity in the affections of—well, let me say, her own husband!"

She bent toward him now, her lips open in a slow smile, all her subtle and dangerous beauty unmasking its bittersweet. The impression she conveyed was that of warmth and of
